

ABSTRACT OF THE DISCLOSURE

Methods and apparatus are provided to determine the configuration of a network such as its topology. Based on status information received from nodes in the network, respective labels that indicate one or more virtual connections traversing the nodes are determined. Based on the determined labels, one or more links connecting the nodes are identified. The configuration of the network is then determined based on the identified links.

5